Air Contamination Control in Hospitals

Joseph R. Luciano

Until now, the need for a composite reference source on the many and complex facets of air asepsis in hospitals has been felt by both engineers and medical personnel. This book fills that void in the literature, bringing together for the first time all the pertinent information related to the control of air contamination in the hospital environment. It is designed to acquaint members of the medical profession, paramedical groups, hospital administrators, department heads, hospital engineers, maintenance and service personnel, architects, and engineers with the broad and detailed aspects of:

- conventional air conditioning systems
- specialized environmental control systems
- isolation systems and their related bacteriological studies.

Air and surface sampling techniques are reviewed, followed by analyses of actual studies conducted here and abroad. The air and surface sampling data illustrate the impact that various systems have on the environment, and from this information, the potential hazards of creating reservoirs of infection may be clearly deduced. The book also suggests methods for reducing energy costs in existing facilities and those planned for the future.

The book offers the most comprehensive listing of references to engineering and medical literature on the subject to be found anywhere, and will be essential in promoting active interest and concern for an infection-free hospital environment. Medical personnel will find careful assessments of the full environmental effects of their actions. Hospital committees assigned to monitor infections can utilize the information found in this book to evaluate their air contamination problems during self-inspection and also as they prepare to meet certification requirements.

CONTENTS: Conventional air conditioning systems. Specialized air conditioning and environmental control systems and techniques. Filters and activated carbon. Air and surface sampling. Air and surface sampling studies. Bacteriological testing of filters and systems. Introduction to laminar air flow systems. Laminar air flow systems (high and low velocities) in operating rooms and research. Reverse isolation systems. Complete barrier isolation systems. Energy saving techniques. Discussion. Appendix. Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Information for Authors

Manuscripts should be addressed to the Editor, SIDNEY F. PHILLIPS, MD, Gastroenterology Unit, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota 55901. Telephone (507) 285-5711. Authors should retain a copy of typescripts and illustrations. Unused manuscripts will be returned to the authors.

Organization. Type manuscripts double-spaced on regular typewriter paper, using 1½-inch margins. Submit the original and two copies. On the first page, give the title of the article, name(s) of author(s), highest academic degree, department and institution from which the work originated, acknowledgments of support or sponsorship, address for reprint requests, and suggested running head. The running head should not exceed 35 characters, including spaces. Personal acknowledgments should be given in a separate section at the end of the article. Number pages consecutively and type author's last name on each page. An abstract of 150 words or less must accompany each original article except for reports of single cases. The abstract will appear at the beginning of the article and should include the purpose, results, and conclusions. In most instances, a summary will be rendered unnecessary by the presence of the abstract.

References. Include, in this order: last name(s) of author(s), then initials (least list all authors), title of article, journal name (Index Medicus abbreviations), volume, inclusive pages, and year published, e.g., Webster PD, Black O, Morrisset JA: Effect of bethanechol chloride on protein synthesis in rat pancreas. Am J Dig Dis 19:167-173, 1974. The format for books: Broder LE, Carter SK: Meningeal Leukemia. New York, Plenum Press, 1972, pp 1-35. Contribution to a book: Grenell RG: Effects of alcohol on the neuron. The Biology of Alcoholism, Vol 2, B Kissin, H Begleiter (eds). New York, Plenum Press, 1972, pp 1-77. Type references double-spaced on a separate sheet (or sheets) of paper and number consecutively in the order in which each is cited in the text. Authors are responsible for the accuracy of their references.

Illustrations and Tables. For illustrations submit unmounted black-ink drawings of professional quality or glossy photographs, also unmounted. Reproductions should be clear, with sharp contrast, especially where fine lines such as those of grids or traces are to be retained. A reasonable cost allowance is made for illustration reproduction or tabular composition; where this is exceeded special arrangements must be made. Papers with color illustrations should be accompanied by a letter stating that the writer will bear the cost of color reproduction. For color, prints are preferred to slides as they are a more reliable guide to the final quality of reproduction. On the back of each illustration give figure number, author's name, and indication of "top" where otherwise not clear. To avoid damaging emulsion of photographs write lightly, preferably with soft pencil. Submit all illustrations in triplicate. Supply a caption for each illustration; group captions in consecutive order on one sheet of paper, if possible. Tables should include a title rather than a caption.

Statement Required for All Human Research. Reports of research performed on human subjects or patients must, in the Materials and Methods section, name the specific institutional review committee which approved the human investigation. If the institution lacks an appropriate committee, the author must specify the ethical guidelines adhered to in the conduct of the research.

Exclusive Publication. Original manuscripts will be considered for publication with the understanding that they are contributed solely to THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF DIGESTIVE DISEASES. In submitting material the author should state in the covering letter that the material has not been published elsewhere and has not been submitted for publication elsewhere.

Reprints may be ordered using the reprint order form which accompanies proofs, and they should be ordered prior to publication. Postpublication orders cannot be filled at regular reprint rates.
